There are three pathways through the minor; in consultation with the minor advisor, a student admitted to the minor may elect the pathway that best supports their goals.

Pathway 1:
Take 3 studios (WR 201, WR 202, and WR 301) plus 1 WR elective: total 15 credits

Pathway 2:
Take 2 studios (WR 201, WR 202, or WR 301) plus 3 WR electives: total 17 credits

Pathway 3:
Take 1 studio (WR 201 or WR 202) plus 4 WR electives: total 16 credits

These different pathways have several benefits for minors. We recognize that, practically speaking, the T/Th schedule of our studios is often difficult for students in other majors to complete across multiple semesters; pathways 2 and 3 give such students more flexible scheduling options. Secondly, we also recognize that students may want to tailor their writing studies to their particular creative goals: for one student, for example, the chance to concentrate their efforts in advanced poetry studios is ideal; for another, the opportunity to take multiple electives in specialized genres and areas of study such as children’s literature or journalism is preferable. We have designed the minor to host the varied goals of talented writers across Pratt’s many disciplines.